Text 2

"The time we spend at school"

A few years ago, as many as 1,000 schools across the USA started making school years longer by adding up to ten extra days to the school year or by making each school day longer by half an hour. This was because it was found that secondary school students in the USA and the UK were spending the least time at school, with an average school year of 187 days. The typical Jordanian school year is longer than this. However, none of these are nearly as long as the school year in countries like Japan and South Korea. South Koreans attend school for 220 days per year, and in Japan, the school year numbers 243 days.

According to a study by the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD), students in Japan, Indonesia and South Korea spend the most time studying in the world. They want to learn as much as they can to ensure excellent exam grades. They go to school for about nine hours, although this includes optional after-school tuition and activities. They also spend about three hours on homework every day, which is three times as much as many other countries. Their high academic achievements do suggest that the longer you study, the better you do in final exams.

In Finland, however, students are usually given less than half an hour of homework per night, and they attend school for fewer and shorter days than 85% of other developed nations. Despite this, they achieve top marks in subjects like Maths and Science. In addition, most students also speak at least two, and often three, languages fluently. The contradictory views of the study suggest that the number and length of school days is not the only factor in determining whether students will succeed at school or not.

1- A number of schools in the USA have lengthened the school year in two ways. Write them down.

2- Which two countries have the least time of schooling?

3- How many days the average Japanese student spend at school?

4- Write down the sentences which shows after school tuition and activities in Japan, south Korea and Indonesia is not compulsory.

5- Why do students in Japan, Indonesia and South Korea spend much time studying?.

6- The fact that students in Finland achieve excellent marks in Maths and Science suggest two facts. Write them down.

7- Find a word in the last paragraph which means " completely two different ideas and that can't both be true."

8- What do the underlined pronouns "they" and "they" refer to?

9- What is the function of using (longer than) in the text?

10- Quote the sentence that indicates the school year in Japan and South Korea is longer than it is in the USA, UK and Jordan.

11- What were the two contradictory results of the study carried out by the organization for Economic Co-operation and development(OECD)?

12- According to the Finland's views of study, the number and the length of school days is not the only factor in determining whether students will succeed at school or not. Suggest three factors would result in better grades for most students.
