TEXT A

A few years ago, as many as 1,000 schools across the USA started making school years longer by adding up to ten extra days to the school year or by making each school day longer by half an hour. This was because it was found that secondary school students in the USA and the UK were spending the least time at school, with an average school year of 187 days. The typical Jordanian school year is longer than this.

According to a study by the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD), students in Japan, Indonesia and South Korea spend the most time studying in the world. They want to learn as much as they can to ensure excellent exam grades. They go to school for about nine hours, although this includes optional after-school tuition and activities. They also spend about three hours on homework every day, which is three times as much as many other countries.

In Finland, however, students are usually given less than half an hour of homework per night, and they attend school for fewer and shorter days than 85% of other developed nations. Despite this, they achieve top marks in subjects like Maths and Science. In addition, most students also speak at least two, and often three, languages fluently.

1. The study shows that students from certain countries spend the most time studying in the world. Write down two of these countries.
2. What is interesting about Finland's fewer and shorter school days?
3. Many schools across the USA started making school years longer in two ways. Mention these ways.
4. Quote the sentence which shows that Jordanian school year is longer than the years in the UK and USA.
5. Find a word in the text that means speaking a language very well.
6. What does the underlined word this refer to?
7. The number and the length of school days aren't the only factors in determining student's achievement at school. Suggest three possible factors that can improve students' achievement.

TEXT B

Studio schools are pioneering schools which receive funding as well as support from private businesses, and which seek to encourage young people to undertake a less conventional form of secondary education. These schools often specialize in one specific area, whilst understanding that the same broad range of skills and qualifications should be made available to all young people.

One such school has recently opened to educate fourteen- to eighteen-year-olds who have a special interest in working in the space industry. Students follow a tailor-made curriculum at the school, including subjects such as Astronomy and Astrophysics. Lessons are a mixture of small-class tutorials, with projects supervised by leading companies in both the space and technology industries.

Prominent scientists and engineers are brought in as guest lecturers, with students aiming to achieve top grades in their Maths and Science exams. When they leave school, they will be well-placed to take any number of different career paths. 'They don't have to become astronauts!' says a spokesperson for the school. 'Excellent grades in science and technology subjects can open many doors and lead to a variety of career opportunities.'

1. Students in space school can study many subjects. Mention two of them.
2. Studio schools have an aim that tend to achieve it. Mention this aim.
3. Write down the sentence which shows the age of students who attend studio schools
4. According to the text, space schools provide special lessons. Describe these lessons.
5. What does the underlined pronoun (their)?
6. Find a phrase in the text that means (made to fit exactly).
