PART ONE: READING COMPREHENSION: (23 POINTS)

Read the following text carefully, and then in your ANSWER BOOKLET answer all the questions that follow. Your answers should be based on the text.

Now people are beginning to pay attention to Toffler's prediction, because the speed of change is accelerating rapidly. What should you do? First of all, don't panic. Take a deep breath and try to get a sense of the good things the future has to offer.

You don't need to be a genius to predict the job areas which will be most affected by technological change. Farming, mining and heavy industry are all doing badly. On the other hand, the media and science are doing really well.

Without doubt, the number of jobs in information technology will rise dramatically. There are currently over 100 million computers in the world and by 2020 the number will be around one billion. Because of this, computer programmers will be in much greater demand.

There are also many other important changes taking place in the workplace. First, the job market is getting more and more competitive and the idea of a "job for life" has already become old-fashioned. Because of this, workers will have to be more flexible.

In the same way, companies will change, and they will require people who are flexible and responsible. They will also need people who can work co-operatively.

English will probably remain the international business language, so learning Russian or Chinese is not a priority. However, understanding other people, their minds, culture and history will be vital.

New technology is the driving force behind the rapidly changing workplace, so don't get left behind. You don't need to become a computer expert, but you must consider improving your computer skills.
